2015 JUL -6 PM 12:15

In a case of: wrongful use of names, property, and exploitation

My name is Daisy Mae Byrd/Mobley, author of my autobiography titled, Southern Girl. My book had always been my way to hopefully free my family from generations of poverty, rather than make millionaires and billionaires wealthier. Unfortunately, that is exactly what happened in mid 2006, shortly after the book was published by a local publisher and went on display in the store window at Carriage Jewelers where I worked at during this time. Also, because of my poverty stricken life, (which I shared with the defendant, Ms. Claire Fermont Langlais during the sale of said book)..decided to deceitfully and maliciously, hijack my book cover and stole my name (Daisy which also led to Daisy Dream) perfume and sister's name (Lola which also led to Oh Lola) perfume as catalyst to package and label four top selling perfume products around the world. I told her all about my hopes and dreams and book purpose.

Your Honor, the records will show that the defendant joined Coty Industries (perfume makers based out of New York in 2006, where she took on the Marc Jacobs brand to promote and rebuild in this same year, and visited Savannah during the grand opening days of the Marc Jacobs store at 322 West Broughton Street, also in 2006. Witnesses will prove that while Ms Claire Fermont Langlais was working on the Marc Jacobs brand, she was in downtown Savannah Georgia browsing store windows, where she walked upon my book on display in the store window where I worked at 2 West Broughton St, at Carriage Jewelers and deceitfully befriended me, for her monetary benefit, and that of Marc Jacobs brand, and benefit of Coty Industries.

Being the common denominator, my witnesses and I knew of Oh Lola six years before it launched, as the defendant repeated it several times in her excitement. I told my co-workers about this seconds after her she left the store. I will prove it was a clever, despicable plot, designed for me to never find out about, as the defendant was aware that I couldn't afford to go shopping as written about in my book, which she purchased. It took precisely nine years to bring those products to market. The records will show that I inspired this collection of perfumes, not Ms Langlais. Everything she needed to make a ton of money, boost her career, and impress her Colleagues was right in front of her. One perfume leading to the next over nine years at my expense without having to pay me a dime.

So, with your permission your Honor I will take on defendants pro se, rather than bury my head in the sand, or look the other way because I am in poverty, and don't have an Attorney. I've decided to study up on taking the defendant and her multimillion, billion dollar associates to court for wrongful use of names/ property, and exploitation. I know it took years for this malicious plot to take shape and for me to discover, and that there are thousands of Daisy's, and Lola's, but with the assistance of my co-workers at the time, I will direct this case to (ME), this Daisy, with a sister name Lola. The records will show that without my book project, and names, the Marc Jacobs and Coty products would be named something else, and packaged another way. The records will show that this heinous and well planed exploitation have brought Marc Jacobs company from the red into the black, off my back and fifteen years of hard work, names and talent, and I expect justifiable compensation for it. The following page reveal those expected residuals.

2015 JUL 23 PM 2:00

A case of wrongful use of names, property, and exploitation

I, the plaintiff, Daisy Mae Byrd Mobley, expect the following compensation from the defendant, Coty Inc. brought on by the offenses of it's employee, Ms Clair Fermont Langlais, in and around mid 2006, which Coty Inc. directly profited from around the world.

In the case of wrongful use of names of the plaintiff and her sister, Lola, which Ms Clair Fermont Langlais wrongfully obtained and illegally used to label perfumes, Daisy and Lola that subsequently led to Daisy Dream, and Oh Lola, I the plaintiff expect $2,000.000.

In the case of wrongful use of property, in the taking of a book cover (which is an original piece of Art done by the Plaintiff, Author and Artist, Daisy Mae Byrd Mobley which Clair Fermont Langlais used for packaging design for said perfumes, that ultimately led to the exploitation the Author, Artist and plaintiff. The expected compensation of 2,000.000 from Coty Inc. for it's direct profit from Daisy, Lola, Daisy Dream, and Oh Lola.

Further more, I the plaintiff, Daisy Mae Byrd Mobley, expect Coty Inc to either purchase the perfume names that apply to it's ownership for 2.000.000 million dollars each or place plaintiff on Coty's payroll at 250.000 a year for the life of the perfumes. Total compensation in pending is based on Coty's choice of settlement option.

I Daisy B Mobley do insist that the above statements are true and accurate and deserve listed compensations in an effort to correct these very wrongful deeds over the last nine years.

To the court of Chatham County,

This letter is to confirm the defendants listed above did reach out to the above plaintiff on 7/29/2015 in an effort to begin to resolve the above civil case. However, the defendant's Attorney Jason Rosenberg, have asked for another months extinction with a dead line date of September 4, 2015, to prepare for this case. The plaintiff Miss Daisy Mae Byrd Mobley have agreed to grant Mr. Rosenberg this extinction with the permission of the court. Enclosed are email copies of this agreement, in the event he does not contact the court himself.

Dear Ms. Mobley,

Thanks again for talking with me earlier this week. I just wanted to confirm our conversation from the other day when you said that you would agree to allow all of the Defendants until Friday, September 4, 2015 to respond to your Complaint. We appreciate your courtesy in this.

Would you mind replying to this email just to let me know? If so, we'll file the appropriate paperwork with the Court, and send you a copy.

Thanks, and have a nice weekend.

Kind regards,

Jason

CIVIL ACTION NO.: STCV1501048-CO

DEFENDANTS' CONSENT MOTION TO SET
DEADLINE TO RESPOND TO COMPLAINT

1. Defendants Claire Fermont Langlais, Marc Jacobs International LLC<sup>1</sup>, and Coty, Inc.<sup>2</sup> (collectively, "Defendants") move this Court, with the consent of Plaintiff Daisy Byrd Mobley, to set Defendants' deadline to answer or otherwise respond to the Complaint in this action on September 4, 2015.

2. Plaintiff filed her Complaint in this action on July 6, 2015. Defendant Marc Jacobs International LLC was served with the Complaint on July 10, 2015, Defendant Coty Inc. (improperly named in the Complaint as Coty Industries) was served on July 21, 2015, and Defendant Claire Fermont Langlais was served on July 30, 2015.

3. Counsel for the Defendants has conferred with the Plaintiff regarding setting a deadline for all Defendants to respond to the Complaint, to which Plaintiff consented. Accordingly, the parties agreed to set a deadline of September 4, 2015 for the Defendants to respond to Plaintiff's Complaint. A copy of the email correspondence between Defendants'
